

Bunnings and Save the Children's Burma Response Day, Friday 23 May 2008

Australians can help raise much needed funds for those affected by Cyclone Nargis in Burma by purchasing a sausage at Bunnings and Save the Children's Burma Response Day on Friday, 23 May.

The home improvement and gardening supply giant will host the sausage sizzle at all of its 185 Australian stores plus 35 stores in New Zealand. In a tremendous show of generosity, every single cent raised from the event will go directly to Save the Children's emergency appeal.

Bunnings Managing Director, John Gillam, had this to say about their choice to support Save the Children's appeal:

"Save the Children responded immediately to the devastating destruction of Cyclone Nargis and have proven themselves to be a strong partner. We are hoping to raise more than $100,000 in support of their great work."

Please support this important emergency appeal by visiting your local Bunnings store on Friday, 23 May and purchasing a sausage or two for a good cause. Donation buckets will also be on hand if you wish to simply make a coin donation.
